Biography

AI represents insurers, reinsurers, and commercial clients in complex coverage, extra-contractual, and liability disputes in state and federal courts and in arbitration. He focuses his practice on insurance coverage and regulation and torts and products liability defense, handling matters from pre-suit strategy through trial and appeal.

AI's coverage work spans casualty and property lines, including primary and excess general liability, bad faith, latent injury, advertising injury, first-party property, professional liability, and workers' compensation. He has secured favorable outcomes on dispositive motions and appeals involving aggregate limits, number-of-occurrences questions, and subrogation, often in matters involving catastrophic construction losses and multimillion-dollar product claims. He also litigates direct actions involving employment, intellectual property, privacy, construction, and products liability, and represents contractors, architects, and engineers in construction-related disputes.

Previously, AI served as senior counsel for a global insurance and reinsurance company, advising on litigation, arbitration, and risk management matters while working closely with leadership and providing guidance to claims and underwriting teams.

Representative Experience

- Prevailed on a motion to dismiss a multimillion-dollar coverage demand for indemnification of catastrophic construction claims under the aggregate limits of a second-layer excess general liability policy.
- Obtained summary judgment, affirmed on appeal by the Appellate Division, First Department, in a contract-interpretation case with more than $500 million at stake involving the aggregate limits of a first-layer excess general liability policy.

- Secured summary judgment in a subrogation action seeking reimbursement of $1 million paid to settle an underlying action arising from a construction worksite accident.
- Obtained summary judgment for a primary insurer against excess insurers on a “number of occurrences” issue concerning a multimillion-dollar products claim.
